CONTENTS

Statement of Board. Course of Study. Adopted Books Classified by Subjects. Adopted Books Classified with Respect to Changes. Adoptions Listed by Publishers.

TO TEACHERS:

Every book listed in the new Course of Study may be readily purchased from the local textbook depository or depositories in each county. Whenever the local dealer cannot promptly supply adopted books, a cash order addressed to the Central Textbook Depository at Columbia will receive immediate attention.

Any and all books on the State list from 1917 to 1922 have heretofore been sold under contract prices expiring June 30, 1922. The State Board of Education has re-adopted a majority of the former titles, but the increased price of paper and of labor also caused an increase in the price of every re-adopted book.

Under no circumstances should pupils be required or requested to buy all the books on the list. Teachers are expected to use discretion and judgment. The overloading of pupils should be especially avoided.

Children should be allowed to complete their old books before purchasing new texts. The exchange period runs till December 15, 1923, hence the introduction of new texts may be easily and gradually accomplished.

Before requesting pupils to purchase new books teachers should use every effort to reduce the cost to a minimum. By a careful survey of the books already in the hands of the pupils and by judicious use of the exchange period during the next eighteen months, the introduction of the new texts and the new course of study ought to be completed without inconvenience and at an average and economical cost. Confusion and difficulty will be reduced to a minimum if teachers confer fully and promptly with parents. Written instructions for new books should be given each pupil and especially small pupils.

Both the retail price and the exchange price should be clearly and legibly marked on each new text. Any variations from these prices should be promptly reported to the State Superintendent of Education.

June 7, 1922.

J. E. SWEARINGEN,
State Superintendent of Education.

STATEMENT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

There is a law of the State of South Carolina that requires a re-adoption of text-books every five years. The State Board of Education knew, therefore, that at some time before the first of July, 1922, this adoption would have to be made. On account of conditions everywhere the Board anticipated that when this adoption should be made there would be a marked advance in the price of text-books; for under the terms of the contracts with the publishers books were being sold below the cost of production.

With these two things in mind the Board at a meeting held last summer requested the Secretary of the Board to ascertain from the publishers of all of the text-books on the State list whether or not it would be possible to renew all contracts for five years, without increase in the price of the books. With practically no exception the publishers replied that a renewal of their contracts on that basis was out of the question. While anticipating this refusal, the Board felt that every effort should be made to prevent as far as possible any increase in the price of text-books for the pupils of our State.

The Board anticipated a refusal because there were facts that clearly indicated that, just as soon as the present contracts should expire, there would be in South Carolina a noticeable advance in the price of text-books. For five years the book contracts that went into effect on the first day of July, 1917, have saved to the people of South Carolina thousands of dollars. Let us cite three illustrations from the scores that are available. One of the primers was sold to the children of South Carolina for one-third the cost of the same book in other states. The geography bought twice as much in New York City as in South Carolina. The paper required to make and bind one of the arithmetics was at one time worth more than the book was being sold for to the pupils of our State.

There is no wonder that the Board of Education anticipated an increase in the price of text-books and there is no surprise to anyone who has noted the cost of other commodities that this anticipation should have been realized. During the past five years a text-book was the only article of trade in South Carolina whose price did not markedly increase. The only preventive of the increase of price of the text-books used in South Carolina was the contract that the State had with the publishers, through its Board of Education.

The State Board of Education wishes to commend the publishers very cordially for their fidelity in the faithful performance of their losing contracts. At the same time the Board rejoices with the children and their parents on account of the very large amount of money that they have been saved through the faithful performance of these contracts.

The Board would continue to rejoice if the present contracts could be made permanent; but, since this is impossible, the Board is offering to the people of the State a set of books at prices as reasonable as the best bids would permit, consistent with sound principles of educational practice. Even from a financial view-point it will be seen that in the fundamental elements of the curriculum the Board has had due consideration for the patrons and has provided books upon the most favorable terms that could be procured. The Board would be delighted if it were possible to provide these books at the former prices. All of the publishers have been exceedingly anxious to sell their books and the competition has been very keen. The Board has the satisfaction, therefore, of knowing that the present prices are as low as any that can be obtained in any State. Moreover, while the contracts last for five years, there is a provision in each contract that South Carolina will get the benefit of a reduction of price granted to any locality in the United States.

No books were dropped from the old list except for at least one of the following reasons:

1. Those that in the judgment of the Board had served their term of usefulness in the schoolrooms of our State.
2. Those that the teachers of the State pronounced unteachable.
3. Those that like Geography or History are now out of date.
4. Those that could not be adjusted harmoniously to the other elements in the program.
5. Those that could be replaced by a smaller number of books, using one book, for example, instead of two, thus saving money in the purchase of books.
6. Those that were not even offered by the publishers and therefore could not be considered by the Board. Of the number of books dropped from the old list the proportion of those not offered was large, about twenty-five per cent.

It must be remembered that the period of exchange of text-books is a year and a half and that those books not completed and in the hands of the pupils will be used by them until they are completed.

In addition to the consideration of economy the Board has been actuated in its selection of books by motives of the real welfare of the child. The Board believes that through the books offered in the supplementary lists the pupil and teacher are given an opportunity of knowing the books that will contribute to the richness of the content of the course of study. The supplementary lists are long in order that the teachers may have before them for selection a list of good books. In addition to this, the teachers may know that these books, if desired, may be purchased from the central book depository of the State. Otherwise many teachers could not get any of these books without trouble and delay.

The Board does not believe that anyone would imagine that any pupil or set of pupils would be required to purchase all of the books on any of these supplementary lists. Even the suggestion is an absurdity. The lists are long not to add expense to the parents, but to help the pupils and teachers make a suitable selection. The Board believes that these books are valuable and should be made available. The State Board of Education places these books into the hands of the pupils and teachers of the State confidently believing that they will so use them as to bring to all of them a broader perspective, a richer heritage, a clearer vision and a larger life.

S. H. EDMUNDS.

Course of Study for Elementary Schools.

Extensive modifications of this course are necessary in schools taught by one teacher and in short-term schools. For details and suggestions see Manual for Elementary Schools, and Manual for High Schools.

The State Board of Education strongly recommends that no pupil be expected or required to prepare and recite more than five lessons per day.

NOTE: Texts marked basal and texts marked optional afford teachers freedom of choice between such texts on the same subject.
